

DONATE

Trump Impeachment Aftermath: Updates

Senate Acquits Trump In Impeachment Trial — Again

February 13, 2021 · 3:52 PM ET

DOMENICO MONTANARO

Former President Donald Trump was impeached for inciting the insurrection at the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6 while lawmakers were certifying the Electoral College votes in his election loss.

Jon Cherry/Getty Images

The U.S. Senate on Saturday acquitted former President Donald Trump on an impeachment charge of inciting an insurrection.

The acquittal comes more than a month after a mob of Trump supporters stormed the U.S. Capitol as lawmakers were counting the electoral results that certified Trump's loss. Five people died in the riot, including a police officer. Two other officers later killed themselves.

A majority of senators voted to convict Trump — 57 to 43, including seven Republicans. But two-thirds, or 67 votes, was needed to convict. It was the second time Trump was acquitted in an impeachment trial.

How Senators Voted

Former President Donald Trump was acquitted of the charge of inciting insurrection. It would have required 67 votes to convict.

Guilty: 57 votes

Not Guilty: 43 votes ✓

SEE HOW ALL SENATORS VOTED >

Credit: Audrey Carlsen, Ruth Talbot and Daniel Wood/NPR

The seven GOP senators who voted to convict Trump on Saturday were: Richard Burr of North Carolina, Bill Cassidy of Louisiana, Susan Collins of Maine, Lisa Murkowski of Alaska, Mitt Romney of Utah, Ben Sasse of Nebraska and Pat Toomey of Pennsylvania.

Trump is the first president in U.S. history to be impeached by the House twice, and the first to be tried for impeachment after leaving office.

The verdict closes the book on this Trump presidency, though the Senate, by not convicting and barring him from holding public office in the future, left open the possibility that Trump, a 74-year-old Republican, could run again for president.

The impeachment managers argued that beyond Trump's comments on Jan. 6, he laid the groundwork with two months of false claims of widespread election fraud and years of tolerating, condoning and encouraging violence.

Mandel Ngan/AFP via Getty Images

In a narrowly divided Senate, the outcome of the trial, which lasted a little less than a week, was largely expected, though it very nearly was extended potentially by weeks. Impeachment managers began Saturday with a surprise, saying they had decided to call a witness, Washington Republican Rep. Jaime Herrera Beutler.

After the defense rested Friday, Herrera Beutler issued a statement detailing — again — that Trump had gotten into a shouting match with Republican House leader Kevin McCarthy during the riot, telling him, "Well, Kevin, I guess these people are more upset about the election than you are."

The Senate then voted to allow witnesses, and Trump's lawyers threatened to call dozens. Both sides eventually agreed to enter Herrera Beutler's statement into the record and move on.

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT TRIAL: LIVE UPDATES

Agreement Reached To Avoid Witnesses In Trump's Impeachment Trial

The heart of Trump's legal team's argument was supposed to be that the Senate did not have jurisdiction to take up the trial of a former federal official. That was certainly part of it and was a message that resonated with the overwhelming majority of GOP senators.

In a vote on the first day of the trial, for example, 44 Republicans voted to say it was unconstitutional for the Senate to try a president after he left office. That's despite a 145-year-old precedent in which the Senate voted that it was constitutional to try a former Cabinet official for impeachment.

The constitutionality argument allowed many Republican senators to sidestep the merits of the case against Trump. That's even though the lead impeachment manager, Rep. Jamie Raskin, D-Md., on Thursday closed his side's arguments by imploring senators that the constitutionality of the trial had been resolved by the earlier vote.

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT TRIAL: LIVE UPDATES

5 Takeaways From The Trump Impeachment Trial After Defense Wraps Up

Trump's lawyers, however, did not stick to a narrow constitutional argument. Instead, they accused Democrats of using the impeachment process for partisan gain and of trying to disenfranchise the people who voted for Trump's reelection. The defense declined to provide evidence of what the president knew about the violence, when he knew it and what he did about it.

The Democratic House impeachment managers argued that the former president, who addressed a rally outside the White House ahead of the insurrection, was "singularly responsible" for the violence on Jan. 6.

They relied, in large measure, on video to prove their case, including never-before-seen Capitol security footage. The videos showed on the Senate floor during what was an, at times, emotional trial brought back the vivid images of the Capitol violence to the very place it happened.

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT TRIAL: LIVE UPDATES

'The Footage Is Horrific': Senators React To Gripping New Video Of Capitol Riot

The video demonstrated how close rioters came to then-Vice President Mike Pence and members of Congress. And the impeachment managers argued that the video showed clearly that the mob of pro-Trump supporters was there for the president, and many believed they were there at the president's behest.

The impeachment managers, however, made a broader case than Trump's comments on Jan. 6. They argued that Trump laid the groundwork for false grievance on the part of his supporters with two months of baseless claims of widespread election fraud that cost him the election and years, in fact, of tolerating, condoning and encouraging violence.

---

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT TRIAL: LIVE UPDATES

Trump Lawyer: His Call To Georgia Officials To 'Find' Votes Was Taken Out Of Context

Trump's lawyers largely sidestepped Trump's false claims of election fraud. Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., asked during the question-and-answer session: "Are the prosecutors right when they claim that Trump was telling a big lie, or in your judgment did Trump actually win the election?"

Trump lawyer Michael van der Veen shot back, "My judgment? Who asked that?"

"I did," Sanders replied.

"My judgment is irrelevant," van der Veen said.

"You represent the president of the United States!" Sanders yelled back before Sen. Patrick Leahy, the presiding officer, gavelled the chamber back to order.

Trump's rhetoric about widespread fraud and a stolen election was false, dismissed by many courts stemming from dozens of lawsuits filed by the Trump campaign and allies across several key states.

---

TRUMP IMPEACHMENT TRIAL: LIVE UPDATES

House Impeachment Managers Say Trump's 'Incitement' Is Not Protected Speech

Trump's legal team also argued that his Jan. 6 rally speech was protected by the First Amendment, a contention that impeachment managers labeled ludicrous. This, after all was an impeachment trial, not a criminal proceeding. An impeachment trial is a political process intended to judge whether an official was upholding their oath of office and a standard of conduct.

With his second acquittal, Trump now plots his next steps in political and public life. Yet he is also contending with potential legal trouble stemming from a New York grand jury investigation and a newly announced criminal probe in Georgia.

That's in addition to Trump's mounting debt and devalued assets. The former president's net worth also dropped $1 billion in early 2020, according to Forbes.

Trump has been able to spin difficulties in his business and personal life before, and the country waits to see if has a next, and perhaps final, act.

More Stories From NPR

POLITICS

Nancy Pelosi Announces Plans For 9/11-Style Commission To Study Capitol Attack

POLITICS

7 GOP Senators Voted To Convict Trump. Only 1 Faces Voters Next Year

POLITICS

'No Regrets': House Managers Defend Their Decision Not To Call Witnesses

POLITICS

Stacey Plaskett: Trump Trial Needed 'More Senators With Spines, Not More Witnesses'

POLITICS

Biden On Trump Acquittal: 'The Substance Of The Charge Is Not In Dispute'

POLITICS

Trump Celebrates His Acquittal, Says The Impeachment Was Part Of A 'Witch Hunt'

Popular on NPR.org

ELECTIONS

The first Gen Z candidates are running for Congress — and running against compromise

NATIONAL

Highland Park suspect's online history reveals a fascination with violence

NATIONAL

Suspect in Highland Park shooting is charged with 7 counts of first-degree murder

NATIONAL

A 76 million-year-old dinosaur skeleton will be auctioned in New York City

NATIONAL

New evacuations for communities near California forest fire

AFRICA

South Africa holds funeral for 21 teens who died in tavern

NPR Editors' Picks

CULTURE

Jury finds man guilty of 1st degree murder of rapper Nipsey Hussle

POLITICS

Cipollone will testify behind closed doors to the Jan. 6 committee on Friday

POLITICS

As calls grow to free Brittney Griner, Biden says he's spoken with her wife

CHILDREN'S HEALTH

A pediatric neurosurgeon reflects on his intense job, and the post-Roe landscape

SPORTS

Mike Grier becomes the first Black general manager in NHL history

BUSINESS

From blockbuster to bust: Behind the precipitous drop in IPOs

Trump Impeachment Aftermath: Updates

READ & LISTEN

HomeNewsCultureMusicPodcasts & Shows

CONNECT

NewslettersFacebookTwitterInstagramPressContact & Help

ABOUT NPR

OverviewDiversityEthicsFinances

GET INVOLVED

Support Public RadioSponsor NPRNPR CareersNPR Shop

PUBLIC EDITOR

NPR Events

Corrections

NPR Extra

---

terms of use

privacy

your privacy choices

text only

© 2022 npr