

OBJECTIVES FOR TRADE NEGOTIATIONS WITH CHINA

The Administration should use the following priorities to guide further trade negotiations with China.

- Fully implement the Phase One Agreement to realize its benefits and to advance additional negotiations that further reduce tariffs and barriers to trade.
- Expand near-term market access for U.S. exporters and investors, ensure fair and equal opportunity to compete and strengthen intellectual property protection.
- Curb overcapacity, eliminate subsidies and remove other policies that undermine fair competition.
- Remove restrictions on digital trade, including allowing the free flow of data and eliminating “secure and controllable” requirements

We use cookies to give you the best experience when using our website. You can click “Accept” if you agree to allow us to place cookies. For more information, please see our Cookie Notice.

Accept

Recommendations for Chinese Reforms to Address Trade and Investment Barriers

Read more about the reforms Business Roundtable supports for liberalizing the Chinese market and ensuring fair treatment of foreign companies in China.

(/recommendations-for-chinese-reforms-to-address-trade-and-investment-barriers)

We use cookies to give you the best experience when using our website. You can click “Accept” if you agree to allow us to place cookies. For more information, please see our Cookie Notice.

Business Roundtable Statement on Signing of Phase One Trade Agreement Between U.S. and China

Business Roundtable commends the Administration for completing a Phase One agreement with China that begins to level the playing field for American workers and businesses.

(/business-roundtable-statement-on-signing-of-phase-one-tradeagreement-between-us-and-china)

THE NEED FOR A STRATEGIC, LONG- TERM APPROACH TO ADDRESS TRADE BARRIERS IN CHINA

Business and Congressional Leaders Discuss Trade and American Competitiveness

Read More (/business-and-congressional-leaders-highlight-need-forstrategic-long-term-approach-to-address-trade-barriers-in-china)

We use cookies to give you the best experience when using our website. You can click “Accept” if you agree to allow us to place cookies. For more information, please see our Cookie Notice.

Accept

We use cookies to give you the best experience when using our website. You can click “Accept” if you agree to allow us to place cookies. For more information, please see our Cookie Notice.

Accept