☰ CNN HealthSubscribe Sign in

Many firings at the US Department of Health and Human Services had been delayed as a legal ...

Thousands of employees across US federal health agencies received an email Monday afternoon telling them they were out of a job as of the close of close of business on July 14, 2025,” read Monday’s notice to dismissed HHS employees, according to copies obtained by CNN. “Thank you for your service to the American people.”

“HHS previously announced our plans to transform this department to Make America Healthy Again and we intend to do just that,” HHS spokesperson Andrew Nixon said in an email to CNN after the Supreme Court’s ruling last week.

In a reorganization announced March 27, HHS eliminated 10,000 employees across agencies including the US Food and Drug Administration, the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the US National Institutes of Health; some have since gotten their jobs back, but the number losing employment Monday is in the thousands, a spokesperson for the agency confirmed.

Some of those 10,000, though, are protected at least temporarily under a different court case, New York v. Kennedy, and are not being separated immediately, the spokesperson said. That includes employees at six units of the CDC — the National Center for HIV, Viral Hepatitis, STD, and Tuberculosis Prevention; the National Center for Environmental Health; the Division of Reproductive Health; the National Institute for Occupational Safety and

Advertisement

“All employees previously notified on April 1 have been separated, except for those” to whom the temporary protection in New York v. Kennedy applies, the HHS spokesperson said.

In that case, Judge Melissa DuBose of US District Court in Rhode Island granted a preliminary injunction request this month from a coalition of 19 states and the District of Columbia to halt the March 27 reorganization plan.

Last week, the administration asked DuBose to narrow her ruling to the divisions cited by the HHS spokesperson, but the judge has yet to rule on that request.

RELATED ARTICLE

HHS reinstates more than 450 CDC employees fired in April reorganization, including childhood lead poisoning team

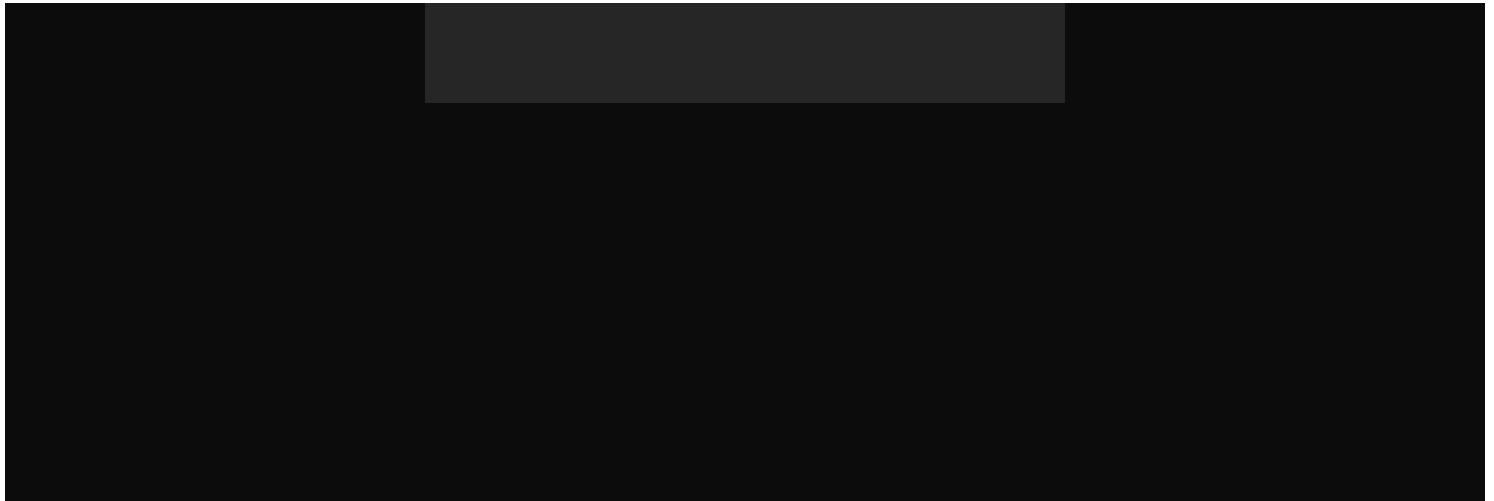

Advertisement

Also Monday, the Supreme Court allowed the Trump administration to proceed with mass layoffs at another agency – the Department of Education – for now. The ruling came in a lawsuit filed by a teachers union, school districts, states and education groups.

Within two hours of that decision, the department sent notices to employees indicating that it's immediately resuming its plans and that the workers would be let go on August 1.

“They seem to be emboldened by the recent Supreme Court decisions that have been green-lighting the Trump administration’s actions that other courts have stayed,” said Andrew Twinamatsiko, a director of the Center for Health Policy and the Law at the O’Neill Institute at Georgetown University, of HHS proceeding with the layoffs.

In last week’s Supreme Court ruling, the justices allowed federal agencies to proceed with their reduction-in-force, or RIF, plans, putting on hold a lower

But the justices noted that “we express no view on the legality of any Agency RIF and Reorganization Plan,” leaving open the possibility that it could rule against a specific agency’s layoff plan in the future if the reductions appeared to make it impossible for the department to carry out its obligation under the law.

Filed by a coalition of more than a dozen unions, nonprofits and local governments, that case stemmed from an executive order Trump signed in mid-February that kicked off the process of significantly reducing the size of federal agencies.

CNN's John Fritze, Devan Cole and Sunlen Serfaty contributed to this report.

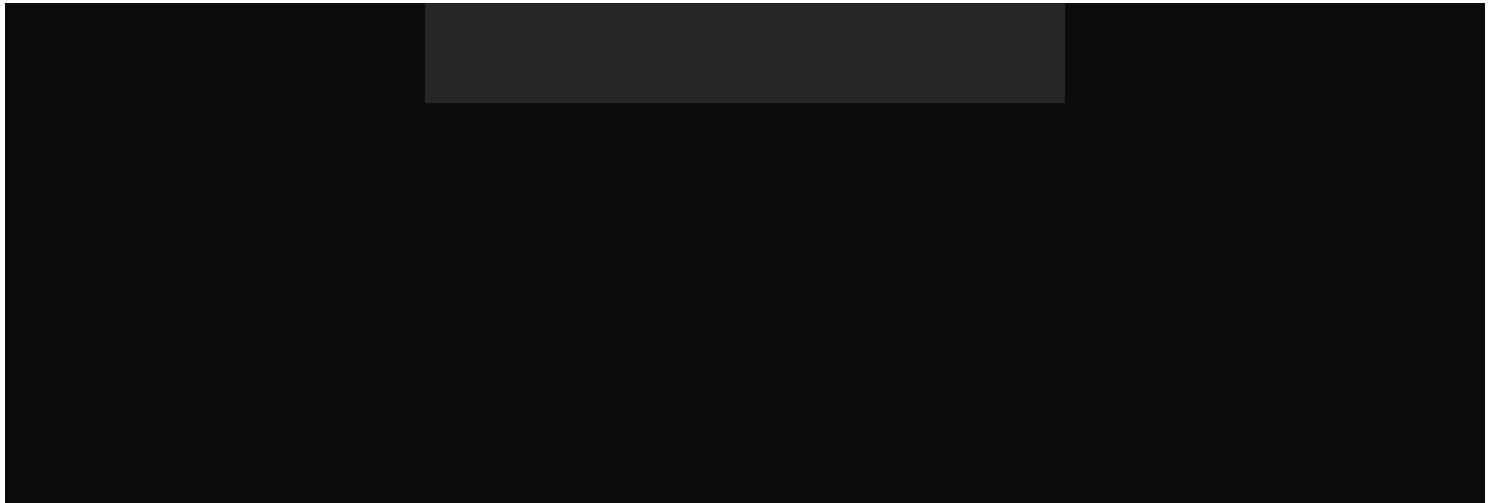

Up next

Supreme Court backs Trump's effort to dramatically reshape federal government for now

5 MIN READ

Justice Department ethics chief says he was fired

2 MIN READ

Here's what could happen as Trump works to dismantle the Department of Education

3 MIN READ

Most read

- 1 Trump flails as Epstein storm rages around his government

- 2 UC Berkeley marketing professor killed by gunman in Greece in broad daylight

- 3 Here's how Trump's tariffs could be impacting prices for US consumers

- 4 4 big questions about Trump and Epstein

- 5 Trump tries to rewrite history on being 'fooled' by Putin

- 6 Sugar, sex and your health: The connection you might be ignoring

- 7 A tropical system could form in the Gulf. It could also be the next big flood

- 8 Apple just spent $500 million to source a material that's critical for iPhones from the US

SubscribeSign inLive TVListenWatchUSWorldPoliticsBusinessMarketsHealthEntertainmentTechStyleTravelSportsScience

GamesAbout CNNCNN HealthFOLLOW CNN

Terms of Use Privacy Policy Cookie Settings Ad Choices Accessibility & CC About Subscribe Newsletters
Transcripts Help Center

© 2025 Cable News Network. A Warner Bros. Discovery Company. All Rights Reserved.

CNN Sans™ & © 2016 Cable News Network.

