Criminal forfeiture is an in personam proceeding brought by the criminal prosecution against an offender, resulting in the forfeiture of the offender's property, assets, and proceeds directly or indirectly obtained from the criminal activity. Unlike civil forfeiture, criminal forfeiture requires a conviction. Therefore, criminal forfeiture can only take place after the offender's criminal prosecution ends in conviction. Criminal forfeiture is limited to the property, assets, and proceeds related to the counts under which the offender gets convicted. The prosecution must establish by a preponderance of the evidence the connection between the crime of conviction and the property, assets, or illegal earnings that the government will seize. The court, in imposing sentence on such person shall order, in addition to any other sentence imposed pursuant to this section, that the person forfeit to the United States all property

(2) Tangible and intangible personal property, including rights, privileges, interests, claims, and securities.

Any such property that is subsequently transferred to a person other than the defendant may be the subject of a special verdict of forfeiture and thereafter shall be ordered forfeited to the United States, unless the transferee establishes in a hearing pursuant to subsection (1) that he is a bona fide purchaser for value of such property who at the time of purchase was reasonably without cause to believe that the property was subject to forfeiture under this section.
